upon vital topics will be read and discussed, elaborate plans have been made to entertain the visitors and to give them a comprehensive view of the resources of New England.

Preparedness against war is one of the matters to be considered. On the closing day of the conference Secretary of War Garrison will deliver an address and Governor Fielder of New Jersey will read a paper on "The State's Duty in the Matter of National Defense." Secretary of the Navy Daniels has sent a part of the Atlantic fleet to Boston for inspection by the governors and will himself be present. Governor Walsh has arranged a mobilization of the state militia for the third day of the conference.

Important Papers.
Among the papers to be read are the following: "Possibilities of the Governors' Conference," former Governor Emmet O'Neal, of Alabama; "State or National Control of Water Power Sites," Governor O. A. Carlson, of Colorado; "The Executive Budget," Governor R. L. Williams, of Oklahoma; "The Duty and the Responsibility of the Governor in Dealing with Prisoners," former Governor Cole L. Blease, of South Carolina; "Economy and Efficiency in the State," Governor W. S. Hammond, of Minnesota; "Taxation," Governor H. C. Stuart, of Virginia; and "Conservation of Mankind and Natural Resources," former Governor John A. Dix, of New York.

A public reception will be tendered the governors at the state house tonight. A steamer trip along the coast of Massachusetts Bay and automobile drives through the Metropolitan park system, to the North shore and to Concord and Lexington are included in the program of entertainment. The governors have been invited to attend the conference of the Society for the Promotion of Training for Public Service, which was purposely arranged for the same dates as the gathering of the executives. This is the eighth annual meeting of governors. The first was held in Washington in 1908, upon invitation of President Roosevelt, to consider the feasibility of uniform state action for the conservation of natural resources. As a result of that gathering the governors conference was made a permanent organization, and has met annually in different states. This year Governor Walsh is chairman.

Those who have accepted the invitation to this year's conference are Governor George A. Carlson, of Colorado; Marcus H. Halcomb, of Connecticut; Charles R. Miller, of Delaware; Moses Alexander, of Idaho; Edward F. Dunne, of Illinois; Oakley C. Curtis, of Maine; W. S. Hammond, of Minnesota; Elliott W. Major, of Missouri; S. V. ATE ONLY RAW EGGS; NOW FEELING FINE

S. D. Martin of Elkhart, O., suffered with stomach troubles and difficulties in his digestive tract. He lost weight and his appetite was bad.

He took one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and was swiftly restored—with one dose. Seven months later he sent an order for more, saying: "Since taking your remedy I have not been bothered any to speak of with my stomach. Before I had had headaches and dizziness, weak spells, of which I am almost free. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking the one dose. It is not that I need the medicine now that I am sending. I am simply going to take it as a preventive. My wife induced a lady friend to try it. She had been eating only a raw egg or cracker or two, and often could not keep them down. This lady used your remedy and it has almost cured her."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

BELFORT IS STOREHOUSE OF SUPPLIES

For War Purposes and Industry and Commerce are Not Encouraged There.

(SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAM)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Belfort, from which the most persistent, tenacious and successful of the invasions undertaken by the allies, that into southern Alsace, has been based, is a powerful fortress on a par with Metz, and one of the most important keys that back the northeastern gates of France. This city is described in today's war primer of the National Geographic Society:

"Belfort and Metz are among the strongest forts in the world, both possessing formidable natural positions which have been strengthened in every way known to modern engineering. The primary importance of both places is their military strength, and in neither place have commercial and industrial 'booms' found any encouragement at the hands of the authorities. Belfort is a storehouse where vast quantities of military supplies are kept, and the safety lock to the French backdoor. During the present war, it has supported a determined invasion beyond the neighboring borders of Alsace.

Paris lies 275 miles away from this fortress in the west-northwest, and the capital and the outpost are joined by the main line of the eastern railway. The German city, Altkirch, lies seventeen miles west of Belfort, while Muelhausen is little more than twenty miles distant. The French post is situated astride of a narrow valley in the midst of a convulsion of sharply broken hills. The intersection of the roads and railways between Paris and Basel, Switzerland, and between Lyons and Strassburg occur here. Before the war, a large trade passed through Belfort to and from Germany.

"The forts of the city are the most up-to-date of works, constructed and maintained with unhesitating, frugal expenditure. They consist of powerful fortifications close upon the city and of outworks built into and upon the tangled hills. During peace times, there was a thriving manufacture of machinery, locomotives, wire, textiles and other metal products here, which manufacture is doubly valuable to the city in war time.

"Belfort was the only French fortress to oppose an unconquerable resistance, to the violent tide of German invasion in 1870-1871. Almost from the beginning of the war, it was cut off from the interior of France. Its forts then were merely the antiquated works of the famous engineer Vauban, but, supplemented by improvised field works, they withstood every effort of bombardment and assault. Belfort, however, must have surrendered in the end, as, by the time of the general armistice, the Germans were surely advancing their final move for its reduction. Belfort today is a much more powerful place than was the city of 1870-1871."
